○ MISBAH-UL-HAQ

Full name: Misbah-ul-Haq Khan Niazi

Born: May 28, 1974, Mianwali, Punjab

Major teams: Pakistan, Faisalabad Wolves, Khan Research Labs, Royal Challengers Bangalore, Sargodha, St Lucia Zouks

Playing role: Middle-order batsman

Batting style: Right-hand bat

Bowling style: Legbreak

Profile

The most remarkable aspect about Misbah-ul-Haq is his unflappable temperament. It shows in his batting, which reached unprecedented levels of consistency in 2011, and in his captaincy, which helped lift Pakistan from the depths of the spot-fixing saga in England in 2010. Taking over as leader immediately after that episode at the age of 36, Misbah's calm approach was exactly what Pakistan cricket needed after the tumultuous period it had gone through.

Full name: Mohammad Hafeez

Born: October 17, 1980, Sargodha, Punjab

Major teams: Pakistan, Faisalabad, Faisalabad Wolves, Guyana Amazon Warriors, Kolkata Knight Riders, Lahore Lions, Melbourne Stars, Sargodha, Sui Gas Corporation of Pakistan

Playing role: Allrounder

Batting style: Right-hand bat

Bowling style: Right-arm offbreak

Profile

As a player, Hafeez gives the team plenty of options: he usually bats aggressively at the top of the order, but his organised technique also means he can switch to defensive mode if required. He doesn't flight his offbreaks much, but his excellent control over line and length allows the captain to use him at almost any stage of an innings. He is also one of the better fielders in the Pakistan team, especially in the point region.

○ UMAR AKMAL

Full name: Umar Akmal

Born: May 26, 1990, Lahore, Punjab

Major teams: Pakistan, Barbados Tridents, Lahore Lions, Pakistan Under-19s, Sui Northern Gas Pipelines Limited

Playing role: Middle-order batsman

Batting style: Right-hand bat

Bowling style: Wicketkeeper

Profile

Umar Akmal burst onto the international scene oozing class, and drawing the highest praise from experts. In his first Test innings, against New Zealand in Dunedin against an attack which included Shane Bond and Daniel Vettori, the 19-year-old Umar scored 129 in an innings when no other specialist batsman touched 30. His fearlessness at the crease and his wide array of strokes had pundits gushing for superlatives, as throughout that series and on the tour to Australia which followed, Umar consistently got starts. Given that he had also scored a century in his third ODI, and that Pakistan were on the lookout for middle-order talent, it appeared Umar would be a certainty in the team in all formats for several years to come.

SOHAIL TANVIR

Full name: Sohail Tanvir

Born: December 12, 1984, Rawalpindi, Punjab

Major teams: Pakistan, Federal Areas, Federal Areas Leopards, Hampshire, Khan Research Laboratories, Lions, Rajasthan Royals, Rawalpindi, Rawalpindi Rams, South Australia, St Lucia Zouks, Sylhet Royals, Zarai Taraqiati Bank Limited

Playing role: Bowler

Batting style: Left-hand bat

Bowling style: Left-arm medium-fast

Profile

Tanvir has established himself as a batting allrounder and his unbeaten 124 (his second first-class century) in the Pentangular Cup 2007 match against Sind further established that point. He also represented Pakistan Academy on their tour of Bangladesh and his fine all-round performance on that tour and against Australia A in the ODI series at home prompted the selectors to name him as Shoaib Akhtar's replacement in the inaugural ICC World Twenty20.

Playing role: Middle-order batsman

Batting style: Right-hand bat

Bowling style: Legbreak

Profile

Asad Shafiq has been reasonably consistent as a Test batsman, showing spunk and flair in the middle order. Against Bangladesh in 2011 he scored his maiden Test century, but against South Africa in 2013 he bettered that, scoring a Test hundred in tough conditions in Cape Town: coming in to bat at 33 for 4, he added 219 with Younis Khan and scored 111 against an attack that included Dale Steyn, Vernon Philander and Morne Morkel.

TAUFEEQ UMAR

Full name: Taufeeq Umar

Born: June 20, 1981, Lahore, Punjab

Major teams: Pakistan, Habib Bank Limited, ICL Pakistan XI, Lahore, Lahore Badshahs, Mumbai Champs, Pakistan Reserves

Playing role: Left-hand bat

Batting style: Right-arm offbreak

Bowling style: Occasional wicketkeeper

Profile

A left-hand opener from Lahore, Taufeeq Umar first made his mark in the Lombard World Under-15 Challenge in England in 1996. He made 87 against England in the semi-final, and in the final, which Pakistan lost to India, he opened with Hasan Raza, who was to play Test cricket shortly afterwards. A front-foot player who drives well, Taufeeq is nonetheless a good cutter. He can also bowl some handy offspin. Taufeeq could not have asked for an easier initiation into international cricket - he played his first Test against Bangladesh in 2001, and duly notched up a hundred to become the eighth player to score a century on Test debut for Pakistan. But far more impressive were his subsequent performances - an 88 against a top-class Australian attack was followed by a flawless 135 against South Africa in Cape Town in 2003.

Playing role: Wicketkeeper batsman

Batting style: Right-hand bat

Bowling style: Wicketkeeper

Profile

Kamran Akmal may well be the most emphatic proof of cricket's changed priorities post Adam Gilchrist. Sides now search for an explosive batsman who can change a day, an innings, a phase with the bat and so long as you can identify right wicketkeeping glove from left, the place is yours.

Playing role: Bowler

Batting style: Right-hand bat

Bowling style: Left-arm fast

Profile

At U-19 level Junaid Khan was among of a crop of the most promising young fast bowlers in recent years, alongside Mohammad Amir. Good pace and better stamina and an ability to move the ball around if the conditions are right, Khan finally made it to national contention when he was called up for Pakistan's 2011 World Cup squad as a late replacement for Sohail Tanvir.

Bowling style: Left-arm fast

Profile

In 2012 as Mohammad Irfan was picked for the limited-overs series in India, where he was regularly quicker than 140kph, and troubled the batsmen with extra bounce. His performances rewarded him a spot on the tour of South Africa, where he made his Test debut.

Playing role: Bowler

Batting style: Right-hand bat

Bowling style: Left-arm fast

Profile

Wahab Riaz, a left-arm fast bowler, has the pace to trouble the best, but hasn't always combined it with consistency. He has benefited from Pakistan's chronic poor luck with fast bowlers: with Shoaib Akhtar and Mohammad Asif missing more than they play and Umar Gul injury-prone, Riaz came into national reckoning earlier than he might have reasonably expected. Since then he has had some good moments in international cricket, but consistency hasn't been his strongest suit.

Playing role: Bowler

Bowling style: Slow left-arm orthodox

Profile

Abdur Rehman made his debut for Pakistan during the ODI home series against West Indies at the ripe old age of 26 (old considering the subcontinent's trait of ruthlessly exposing youth to the world's best). Not a huge turner of the cricket ball, his accuracy and consistency, as well as exploiting the rough marks, does it for him not only at the domestic circuit but at the elite level as well.

○ ANWAR ALI

Born: November 25, 1987, Karachi, Sind

Major teams: Pakistan, Karachi Blues, Karachi Dolphins, Karachi Harbour, Karachi Urban, Karachi Zebras, Pakistan A, Pakistan International Airlines, Pakistan Under-19s, Sind

Batting style: Right-hand bat

Bowling style: Right-arm medium-fast

Profile

Hailing from a humble background, Anwar Ali once showed up at the National Cricket Academy nets with a pair of worn-out shoes. It was Aaqib Javed who took him under his wing and helped provide proper spikes and other cricket equipment to him. Anwar is a fast bowler out of the typical Pakistani mould, capable of swinging the ball, both old and new, at decent pace. He gave the world a brief glimpse of his talents with a destructive display in the 2006 Under-19 World Cup final against India, in Colombo, when his 5 for 35 spearheaded Pakistan's 38-run win.

Playing role: Allrounder

Batting style: Right-hand bat

Bowling style: Right-arm fast-medium

Profile

Abdul Razzaq was once rapid enough to open the bowling and remains composed enough to bat anywhere, though he is discovering that the lower-order suits him nicely. His bowling - the reason he was first noticed - is characterised by a galloping approach, accuracy, and reverse-swing. But it is his batting that is more likely to win matches. He boasts a prodigious array of strokes and is particularly strong driving through cover and mid-off off both front and back foot.

Major teams: Pakistan, Faisalabad, Faisalabad Wolves, National Bank of Pakistan, Pakistan A, Pakistan Under-19s, Port Qasim Authority, Punjab Stallions, The Rest

Bowling style: Right-arm medium-fast

Profile

Mohammad Talha should not be judged by the lack of muscle on a body more thin than lean; that very body produces some discomfiting, skiddy pace, particularly after the ball has landed. He is young still but has, over the 2007, announced himself as a man with serious credentials for the national side. Talha first came to prominence in 2005, during the Afro-Asia U-19 Cup in Visakhapatnam for Pakistan. Wickets weren't immediate but something about him impressed the establishment and he has since worked extensively with Aaqib Javed, who was impressed first at the National Cricket Academy and then as coach of a Pakistan Academy side touring Zimbabwe and Kenya in August-September 2008. His start in first-class cricket was impressive;

○ SOHAIB MAQSOOD

Born: April 15, 1987, Multan, Punjab

Major teams: Pakistan, Baluchistan, Multan Region, Multan Tigers, National Bank of Pakistan, Pakistan Under-19s, Water and Power Development Authority

Profile

Pakistan expects big things from Sohaib Maqsood, who shares his city of birth with Inzamam-ul-Haq (both were born in Multan), and is only the fifth Pakistan batsman to score fifties in his first two ODI innings. He made his international debut in 2013, but those who've seen him bat reckon he could have played for Pakistan much earlier had it not been for a spate of injuries.

SHOAIB MALIK

Playing role: Middle-order batsman

Batting style: Right-hand bat

Bowling style: Right-arm offbreak

Profile

In essence, Shoaib Malik is a batting allrounder, though he started his career as an off-break bowler. Partly the problem is that he is capable, as a batsman, of fulfilling many roles with some competence. He has had success as an opener in Tests and ODIs; he has been game-changing as a limited-overs one down and dangerous as a lower-order slogger; often he has been a stodgy middle-order bulwark. In Twenty20s, he can be brutal anywhere.

Batting style: Right-hand bat

Profile

A left-arm spinner with plenty of experience, Zulfiqar Babar had to wait more than ten years since his first-class debut to finally get a Test match. When he finally played against South Africa in the Test series in the UAE in 2013, he had already taken 309 first-class wickets at an average of 20.36.

AZHAR ALI

Born: February 19, 1985, Lahore, Punjab

Major teams: Pakistan, Khan Research Laboratories, Lahore, Lahore Eagles, Lahore Lions, Pakistan A

Batting style: Right-hand bat

Profile

An opening batsman by trade, Azhar has worked his way steadily up Pakistan's domestic scene since 2006. That was the season he began opening regularly for Khan Research Laboratories, a move that fetched him two hundreds and two fifties in five matches, and he hasn't looked back. In four seasons since, he's been averaging 40-plus with 11 hundreds, commendable figures in a country where opening is a modern-day curse.

Full name: John Kenneth Lever

Born: February 24, 1949, Stepney, London

Major teams: England, Essex, Natal

Other: Manager

Bowling style: Left-arm fast-medium

Profile

It wasn't John Lever's fault that he could never match the brilliance of his maiden Test, in which he took 7 for 46 and 3 for 24 at Delhi in 1976-77. A left-arm fast-medium seamer notable for stamina and fitness, "JK's" stock delivery, the inswinger, often stubbornly refused to move even in conducive conditions in England. At Delhi, however, he had a stroke of luck. Early in the Indian innings a ball that was hardly moving at all lost its shape, and was replaced by one that swung prodigiously. From 43 for 1 India plunged to 49 for 4 in 16 balls from Lever, and eventually lost by an innings. Lever finished the series atop England's averages with 26 wickets at 14.61. In 16 subsequent Tests, however, his 47 wickets cost 33.42 each. He continued with Essex into cricketering old age, and then moved seamlessly into school coaching, as well as helping out with counties.
